April Musings.

Listen, love, to the robin's plaintive calling:
The bluebird's aria in the budding trees,
From morn till eve upon my ear is falling
The drowsy droning of the humming bees,
And all day long the river is surging,
singing.

A glorious song of spring time's merry glee:
While the glad shouts of children's voices ringing,
Are borne upon the soft south wind to me.

Sorrowful April rain, your mournful sobbing
Brings back those halcyon days of yore,
With longing all my heart is throbbing
For loved ones I shall see no more.

Far off south land, waft thy breezes over
The mound they made one dreary winter day,
Wake the sweet violet, and the white clover—
Let their perfume cover, one I love, hidden away.

MRS. G. R. GREENAWALT, Bartlett, Ohio.

port Township met in the village of
